GARMAN OPERA HOUSE DEAL CLOSED BY MOOSE

Plan to Make Changes at Cost of Several Thousand Dollars.

CONSIDERATION $20,000

The deal for the purchasing of the Garman opera house in Bellefonte by the Loyal Order of Moose was closed on Monday afternoon of this week, as anticipated. The consideration was $20,000.

The Moose lodge has been raising money for some time for putting this deal over and expect to spend several thousand dollars during the coming year to make some improvements and convert the third and fourth floors into a local Moose Home.

A ladies' rest room, to be open to the public, will be placed in the front part of the basement of the building and will be well equipped. The offices now used by Herbert Auman, tax collector, will be done away with and a flight of stairs put to the third and fourth floors for use in connection with the lodge.

The lease on the building held by Brown and Toner will continue in effect until April 1st, the management conducting the opera house as they have for several years past. Nothing definite as to future plans for the opera house have been made known excepting that it will be continued as a show place, either under the present management or under direct management of the Moose.

Fred H. Brigman, one of the Moose state officers, of Pittsburgh, was in Bellefonte the forepart of the week and represented the Moose in the closing of the deal. The Garmans were represented by Edwin F. and William Garman, of Bellefonte.

The sale of this property closes out the estate of the late Daniel Garman in Bellefonte, the three properties sold including the Garman House, now owned by August Glintz; the homestead recently purchased by Decker Brothers, and the opera house. The amount realized from the three sales was close to $60,000.

IMPROVING CHURCH

Lutherans Making Big Improvements at Cost of $8,000.

The Lutheran congregation in Bellefonte, under leadership of their worthy pastor, Rev. Wilson P. Ard, have been making some fine improvements at their church property at the corner of Allegheny and Linn streets. Not so long ago the new pipe organ was installed. Now the building proper is being put in splendid shape at a cost estimated at $8,000.

Members of the committee in charge of this work are Frank Crawford, William J. Emerick, R. T. Bloomquist and Mrs. Thomas Hazel. The basement has been finished throughout and equipped for special social functions, holding of suppers, etc. A fine kitchen and dining room, with modern equipment, puts the church in the best of shape for handling social affairs.

The past week framework has been placed about the outside of the church and workmen have begun to stucco the building. The stucco is of a brown and white color combination, very pleasing to the eye. This work can be done just as well at this time of the year, it is claimed, as at any other, the material being such that it does not freeze.

Over $5,000 toward paying for these improvements was raised in less than fifteen minutes at a recent morning service in the church. The congregation has strongly supported Rev. Ard, who is a great leader, and the results attained by the Lutherans' general co-operation has reflected to the glory of the church.

Postmaster Arrested.

Postmaster Gunsallus, in charge of the WarriorsMark postoffice, was arrested on Tuesday by postal inspectors, according to despatches from Altoona to Philadelphia newspapers. Gunsallus is alleged to be short $500 in his accounts, which may, of course, be a technical deficiency due to book-keeping methods. Alvin Albert and Kenneth Kline, clerks in the Johnstown post-office, were arrested at the same time, charged with misappropriating parcel post and letter mail matter. Each was held under $1000 bail for federal court.

Councilmen Viewed Property.

Members of Council on Friday went over the property offered the Borough for generating electric light and power for Borough needs by Ulsh & Bashoar. No definite decision as to what action will be made, it is said, until the next meeting of Council when the matter will be taken up with other business.

STOCKHOLDERS MEETING

Bellefonte Trust Company Had Memorable Day on Tuesday.

Stockholders of the Bellefonte Trust Co. held their annual meeting on Tuesday morning and were highly pleased with the report of the treasurer, N. E. Robb, which showed a healthy increase in all departments of the bank. They re-elected the board of directors as follows: J. L. Spangler, A. C. Mingle, W. J. Emerick, A. R. McNitt, L. H. McMullen, J. L. Seibert, C. Y. Wagner, F. L. Wetzler, N. E. Robb.

At the noon hour, the stockholders and guests enjoyed a most delightful luncheon at the Brockerhoff House. Landlord M. A. Landsy served one of his fine chicken dinners. About 50 or more persons were served. After gathering about the tables, Mr. Robb asked Rev. Andreas, of Milesburg, to say grace. When all were seated, Mr. Robb said the stockholders had done all their figuring and planning for the ensuing year, taking care of business matters, at the meeting in the morning and, unless some person insisted on being heard, there would be no addresses. The meal was then served and full justice was done to the good things placed at the plates in abundance. Nobody insisted on a special speech and the men arose in a body after the luncheon.

During the afternoon, a meeting of the board of directors was held in the well appointed room in the bank building. Officers were re-elected as follows: J. L. Spangler, president; A. C. Mingle, vice-president; N. E. Robb, secretary and treasurer; E. S. Orr, assistant; N. E. Robb, trust officer. Employes were retained as follows: F. O. Witmer, Helen K. Robb, Grace E. Witmer, Mildred Wagner, Warren L. Cobb. What other business was transacted at this meeting, was not made public, but it is understood the directors are just as optimistic in the outlook for a good year in 1924 as passed in 1923.

PACKARD STATION.

Representatives Here Looking Over Several Business Properties.

A representative of the Packard Motor Co. has been in Bellefonte for several weeks and during that time has looked over a few choice business properties with a view to purchasing and establishing a Packard distributing station here. Such a station, midway between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, might prove a good business venture for Bellefonte.

The station would handle accessories for the Packard patronage throughout this district and would serve as a central distributing branch. Among the properties being considered are the McClain block and the Valentine property on High and Spring Sts.

Hmane Officer Investigating.

George Glenn, local humane officer, on complaints about conditions at the Heverly place near Spring creek, occupied by John Farley, investigated on Tuesday afternoon. He said, "I was accompanied by the auditor and poor overseers of Benner Twp. We found one horse dead, another poorly kept, and two hogs dead. There were six other hogs and they were turned over to the Hartle farm to be cared for. Mr. Farley had no feed on hand and was living under conditions you would not believe possible. He had only one stick of wood for fuel, a loaf of bread, and a piece of meat to eat, there was no light in the house which was filled with smoke and the windows closed by boards nailed over the openings. It was hard to get to his place and he was alone, so that if severe winter should set in, we feared for his safety. Nothing could be done, however, as it was discovered he had money in bank and the attorney for the overseers declared they could not give him aid when he had a bank account."

45th Wedding Anniversary.

James H. Potter and wife, two of Bellefonte's well-known residents, on Wednesday observed their 45th wedding anniversary. They were married in Bellefonte 45 years ago by Rev. William Laurie, then pastor of the Presbyterian church here, at the home of Mrs. Potter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Sommerville. Mrs. Potter's maiden name was Miss Mary Sommerville. Her sister, Miss Bessie Sommerville, of Winburne, was a guest at the home yesterday, where a delicious dinner was served in honor of the wedding anniversary. Mr. Potter is 69 years old and has been in the hardward business for 52 years. He is now president of the Potter-Hoy Hardware Co., serving in this office for a number of years.

Annual Automobile Show.

Arrangements are now being made to hold the annual show of the Centre County Automobile Dealers in the Bellefonte armory the early part of February.

ISAAC MITCHELL DEAD WAS PIONEER BANKER

Had Stroke on Sunday Evening Unconscious to the End

BURIAL HERE ON FRIDAY

Isaac Mitchell, one of the best known residents of Bellefonte, passed from this life on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock from a stroke which he suffered on Sunday evening. He remained unconscious from the time stricken until the end, becoming weaker gradually. Born in Philadelphia, a son of Charles and Cetherine Mitchell, he was 81 years old last September 28th, but had been a resident of Bellefonte since graduating from Girard College in the class of 1857.

He became identified with banking interests here in early life, following his chosen work until about three years ago, when he retired as secretary of the Bellefonte Trust Company. He had served in this position faithfully for many years and prior to the organization of the Bellefonte Trust Company, was in the bank under the late Major Reynolds.

In his work as a banker, he became known to a wide circle of friends who cherished his friendship and valued his kindly counsel. He was of a retiring disposition but "once a friend, always a friend," of the sincere old-school type so well-liked, so seldom found.

He was a lifelong member of the Presbyterian church and took a keen interest in its affairs, for many years being active in both the church and Sunday school work. In this field, he will be missed much but more so in his home-life, having been a very good father.

He was married in November, 1869, to Miss Deborah Thomas, a daughter of the late Jacob Thomas. She preceded him to the grave and Mr. Mitchell for years had resided with his daughter, Mrs. John P. Lyon, on West Curtin street. Here he found a good home in which he will be sadly missed.

Mr. Mitchell served his community in many ways and for a long period was clerk of Town Council. He was a veteran of the Civil war and fraternally, a member of the Mosons.

Surviving are three sons: J. Thomas and Malcolm A., of Greenwood, Miss.; Joseph D., of Lewistown; and two daughters: Grace E., an instructor in Miss Fine's School in Princeton, N. J., and Mrs. Lyon. Funeral services will be held from the Lyon home on Friday afternoon and burial made in the Union cemetery.

JAMES EWING DROWNED

Was Well Known Citizen in Western Part of County.

James Ewing, a well-known citizen of the western part of Centre County, passed away last Friday night. He had been an inmate of the home at Shirleysburg, Pa., for a short time.

He was one of the patients and was permitted to take strolls daily. He evidently became bewildered while walking on Friday and got into the mountains. Searching parties were sent out when he did not return as customary and they found his body in a small mountain stream, about 5 miles away. He was lying on his back in about 12 inches of water.

Deceased had been in feeble health for some time and was taken to the Bellefonte hospital last fall. Later, he was transferred to the Shirleysburg home.

James Ewing was a son of the late John Ewing, a pioneer iron worker in Pennsylvania furnaces. He was united in marriage to Jane McCormick and to this union were born three sons and one daughter.

He was a good citizen in every way and a member of the Presbyterian church of Graysville. His legion of friends here and elsewhere will be grieved to learn of his sad ending. Burial was made in Graysville cemetery on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by the side of his wife, who preceded him 22 years ago. His pastor, Rev. H. D. Fleming, officisted.

Touring Car Collided with Dinkey.

A Ford touring car, owned and driven by Joseph Smoyer, of Pleasant Gap, was considerably damaged on Monday morning when it collided with the dinkey of the White Rock quarries at the crossing at Pleasant Gap. Mr. Smoyer is employed in State College and was driving to work when the accident occurred. Nobody was injured.

Woman Released from Jail.

Mrs. Bertha Graffius, of Philipsburg, who was recently placed in jail on a serious charge, was released on Sunday.

MANY MOTORISTS WAITING FOR 1924 LICENSE TAGS

Thousands Sent Their Money to Harrisburg Weeks Ago.

DRIVERS LICENSE NEXT

It is keeping automobile owners and drivers busy these days understanding exactly what is required of them by the numerous new laws passed at Harrisburg. Incidentally, it is keeping Harrisburg equally busy, if not busier, trying to step in pace with the new laws by furnishing necessary automobile title registration certificates, license cards and plates, and drivers' licenses. Of the one million car owners in Pennsylvania, propably one-half have thus far been provided with registration certificates and 1924 license plates and cards. Drivers licenses are still to come. So great has been the jam of applications for licenses and registration that Harrisburg has been literally swamped. The State Highway Department has not been able to cope with the emergency. Already it has been announced officially that 1923 license plates will be legal until February 1st. Another extension may become necessary, not because car owners have not filed their applications and forwarded their money to Harrisburg, but simply that Harrisburg has not been able to handle the biggest rush of the kind since motor cars came into general use. The new drivers licenses will not be required before March 1st.

The admitted inability of the State Highway Department to get registrations and licenses out on time has resulted in a widespread agitation for the adoption in Pennsylvania of the system in force in New York and several other states. Under that system licenses are issued in the larger cities and county-seats to residents of such cities and counties. It is a system somewhat similar to that used in Pennsylvania in issuing hunting, fishing and dog licenses. Such a system for motor licenses has been found to be a convenience to car owners in a number of ways. By distributing the work among a group of sixty or more branch offices, instead of having it pile up and swamp one central agency, such as that at Harrisburg, applicants are enabled to secure licenses on the same day they file their blanks and pay the required fees. Under the Pennsylvania system many thousands of motorists who forwarded their applications and money to Harrisburg from one to two months ago are still waiting to receive registration certificates and licenses. Under the New York system the motorist has the use of his money up to the day he applies for his license. In Pennsylvania he hasn't.

It isn't the fault of Benjamin G. Eynon, registrar of automobiles at the State Highway Department, that many thousands of persons who sent their money to Harrisburg weeks and weeks ago are still without licenses. Eynon is an expert in his line. The remarkable increase in the number of applications, and constantly changing automobile laws, have served to make the present system hopelessly inadequate. Coupled with this, as contributing to the congestion at Harrisburg, is the delay until the last minute by many motorists in filing applications. The net result is, however, that each year the system breaks down during the great rush period, and each year seemingly the break-down becomes more serious. Eynon and a large corps of assistants have been working day and night, Sundays included, trying to do the impossible. His is a heroic job, with few boquets for the big things he accomplishes, but endless criticism because he can't do everything that the million or more motorists in the State want done at one time. Even now, with his department away behind in issuing registration certificates and license plates, Eynon is trying to head off another jam in the matter of drivers licenses applications. He is probably becoming weary of life meaning nothing to him but one jam after another.

"The titling section of the automobile division," declared Registrar Eynon a day or two ago, "can handle 50,000 operators' licenses daily, but it will be an impossibility for the department to care for 1,000,000 applications in two or three days or a week. Application blanks can now be procured and we suggest to operators that they make immediate application."

As a result of Eynon's timely tip to motorists, all of whom must have operators' licenses if they expect to drive their own or other cars after March 1st, about 5,000 applications are flowing into Harrisburg daily. But this number will have to take a jump to three or four times that notch, if there is not to be another jam along toward the end of February. Persons holding operators' or drivers' licenses in 1923 need pay only $1 for a driver's license for 1924. All others will have to pay $2.50. The latter group, and possibly some of the former, will also have to undergo personal tests to determine their ability to drive a car. It is needless to point out that some who held 1923 licenses should be required to pass such a test.

One of the sanest and most sensible, and for that reason most helpful, statements that has come out of Harrisburg in the past year was that relating to headlights for cars, issued a few days ago by W. W. Matthews, chief inspector of motor vehicles. His statement was prompted by the fact that many scores of cars have been stopped by the new motor patrol because headlights blinded occupants of approaching automobiles. Numerous accidents on the road have been caused by improperly adjusted headlights. What Mr. Matthews has to say on this subject is worth-while reading for every person who drives a car. It is intended to help the person who wants to do the right thing. The new motor patrol will look after the person who doesn't. In this connection, it is only tossing a flower where it is deserved when we commend the polite, courteous motor patrolmen operating between Bellefonte and Lock Haven for the manner in which they have been handling themselves during the experimental period of the new law. They have used discriminating judgment in not stopping cars at random, merely to display their powers, but have confined their work to holding up only motorists guilty of speeding or whose cars were noticeably defective. Of course, there is the customary inspection of license cards, but on the whole the motor patrolmen have been most considerate of the rights and privacy of occupants of cars and have not intruded themselves unnecessarily. A continuance of this policy, with rigid enforcement against speed maniacs and road hogs, will merit public approval. It is because the new motor patrol are required to stop cars with defective headlights that Chief Inspector Matthews issued the following statement:—

"No one who has occasion to drive at night will deny that headlights, in spite of many recent improvements, are still not only a nuisance, but in many cases a real menace, and that the problem of glare elimination is a hard one. However, I think motorists generally are under the impression that this is a technical question on which they can never hope to be fully informed unless they are electrical engineers; and one can hardly blame the average person for this belief when he hears the technical experts speak of axial variations, horizontal prisms, parabaloidal reflectors, and such other terms.

"Regardless of all these things, I believe the average driver feels that headlight adjustments are made for the other fellow, and I think this can be borne out by the fact that in any conversation about night driving one always hears the driver complaining of the other person's lights, but he usually fails to state how bad are his own. Right here is the opportunity for some real missionary work, because the sooner the idea that headlamp adjustments are made for the other fellow is dispelled, the sooner we will obtain some relief.

"The terms 'focusing' and 'tilting,' may seem formidable; and we have constant inquiries regarding what is meant by focal adjustment. The focal position of a bulb in the head-lamp is the point at which it should be set with respect to the back of the reflector to give the correct spread to the light beam, and the position of the bulb is often the cause of the glaring headlight. If the bulb is too far back, the reflection comes at the top of the reflector, limiting the light thrown ahead of the car, and if it is too far forward the reflection comes from the bottom of the reflector, causing the light to glare in the eyes of approaching pedestrians or drivers.

"Somewhere on the lamp casing of cars of nearly all recent models there is usually to be found a set screw which moves the bulb back and forth, and this is the only operation necessary in focusing head-lamps. You all realize, of course, that if the beams of light are allowed to shoot in the air or are projected on the ground too close to the car, you will not have the necessary light on the road, and in some cases it is necessary to tilt the head-lamps downward to a slight degree. A simple means of making this adjustment is to throw the lights, after they have been properly focused, on a wall or screen about ten feet in front of the car; and if the top of the beam of light is above the centre of the head-lamps as measured on your body, you may be assured that at a distance of

ODD PRANK DISRUPTS LOCAL LIGHT SERVICE

Dr. Tinsley's Radio Set Burned Expensive for Company

EMPLOYES GOOD WORK

An odd prank disrupted electric service in Bellefonte for a comparatively short time early last Friday morning and gave the local officials and employes of the Keystone Power Corporation an opportunity of which they made good use. The quick and splendid work done in getting the service re-established is very commendable and is in line with Manager R. C. Musser's slogan, "Better Service."

A pole on Logan street, on which was a small transformer, burned to the ground and destroyed the transformer. This let the heavy voltage, 2,200 volts, current pass directly into a number of homes. It was too much current for the equipment and a large number of lamps were burned out. The radio set of Dr. Robert B. Tinsley, a local dentist, was also destroyed.

Had any members of the Tinsley family had on the radio headgear, it is said the heavy voltage current would have passed through their bodies and instantly killed them. Fortunately, the accident occurred at a time when most good folks are in bed and therefore there was no tampering to ascertain the trouble and nobody was burned or injured by the current. Before many families knew the service had been disrupted, the local employes had been informed of the occurrence and workmen were busy, making temporary repairs that quickly re-established the service. Then a few places that were not working just right when it became so windy on Friday night were looked after in the darkness. Permanent repairs were made on Saturday.

The company has been making good any damages for which they held themselves responsible and have done so well that many folks have a better opinion than ever of the spirit to really give Bellefonte and Centre County better service. It is believed the fire was started by a short circuit in the transformer, which we understand is an unusual occurrence.

WANT CONCRETE ROAD

Prominent Residents Circulate Petitions to Improve Highway.

The "Bald Eagle Trail" boosters are becoming more enthusiastic as citizens realize what a vast improvement it would be to have the road through Bald Eagle valley of a substantial and enduring construction. The original idea to have a concrete link put between the concrete stretches at Snow Shoe Intersection and Bald Eagle, giving a modern highway between Milesburg, Bellefonte and Tyrone, has been looked upon favorably by the State highway Department, at Harrisburg, it is said. Citizens of lower Bald Bald valley are much interested in the movement and have expressed themselves as back of a movement to have the concrete road the entire distance between Tyrone and Lock Haven, worthy, beautiful and much travelled route connecting highways east and west in the state. "Why not?" they ask.

The meeting at Unionville on Friday evening was well attended and some definite results are being obtained through the Port Matilda Welfare Association. Our Port Matilda correspondent covers this well in his letter, printed this week in our "Correspondence Column."

The project to have the highway of concrete all the way between Lock Haven and Tyrone is being supported by prominent citizens of Bald Eagle valley. Petitions have been largely circulated and signed, then forwarded to the State Highway Department.

There is no question but that such an improvement would be a worthy project for the State Highway Department to take action on now and to get started this summer. Just now the Bald Eagle valley road, both east and west of Milesburg, is in bad shape and it is dangerous to motor on it. It is a well-known fact, too, that the highway through Bald Eagle valley is of such a type, where it is not of concrete, that it seems a hopeless task to keep it in fit shape for motoring during wet weather, the winter and spring months. Yet, it is the natural route between Lock Haven and Tyrone, Altoona and Williamsport, the east and the west would undoubtedly be much used if built of concrete.

Get rid of constipation by internal cleanliness

Many Diseases Start from Clogged Intestines

THERE is no reason why you should suffer from constipation. Headaches, biliousness, sleepless nights, heaviness, are nature's warning that intestinal poisons are flooding your system. If allowed to continue, you may become a victim of serious organic disease.

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favor Lubrication

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water it is harmless.

Get rid of constipation and avoid disease by adopting the habit of internal cleanliness. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

Woman Disarms, Then Spanks Boy Bandits

A woman motorist spanked two bandits who tried to rob her near Kansas City, Mo. The woman, Mrs. W. M. Mitchell, gave two boys a "lift" in her motor car, she said. One of them pointed a pistol at her and ordered her to give him her purse. She knocked the pistol from his hand, then spanked both of the boys, she declared. The young bandits fled.

TEXAN IS HELD IN TREE FOR 10 DAYS

Fell Into Deep Hollow and Found Self a Prisoner.

San Antonio, Tex.—Imprisoned for ten days in the hollow of a giant oak tree into which he had fallen, Harry Comstock, thirty-one, was rescued by Bexar county (Tex.) deputy sheriffs and farmers, who cut into the tree with an ax. He drank a gallon of water within a few minutes. He had been without food or drink during his imprisonment.

Comstock told those who rescued him that he climbed into the tree to seek shelter and that he fell into the deep hollow of the tree. He tried to get out, but failed. At intervals for ten days he shouted for help. Gradually he grew weaker.

Finally some one walking through the Otto Reiley ranch heard a cry for help. It was traced to the oak tree and help was summoned.

It took half an hour to hew into the trunk where the man was imprisoned. He was so weak that he could hardly speak and his voice was husky for want of water. His body was bruised all over from struggles to escape.

Comstock was taken to a hospital at San Antonio. Food was given him gradually, medical aid was administered, and physicians say he will be none the worse for his strange experience.

Mother of Nine Constable in Village of Seldom Seen

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Mrs. Julia M. Fife, mother of nine children, a widow, rules Seldom Seen as its constable, by virtue of 19 votes of the 25 in the hamlet, in a recent election.

Seldom Seen, though scarcely more than a mile from this city's busiest section, is an inaccessible village of 16 homes, perched on the edge of a precipitous bluff that comprises a portion of St. Clair township.

Seldom Seen was the former rendezvous for promoters of cock fights and for a time boasted of several gambling resorts.

These are gone now, says Constable Fife, "thanks to fire, and I don't expect the element that supported them to return. But if they do—" (she displayed a threatening bare arm and a clenched fist, hardened by unremitting daily manual toil)—"they better not try it!"

After spending the night in town Seibert took Budd to where the car lay in eight feet of water.

"I'm through with that pesky thing," he said. "Take it as payment for towing it out." (Budd did.)

Overthrow of George of Greece, Latest Ruler to Lose His Crown.

London.—The sudden exile of George II of Greece marks the passing of the twelfth crown in Europe in eight years. One has only to call the roll, beginning with King Nicholas of Montenegro, who fled to Italy on January, 19, 1916, to realize how obsolete has become that phrase, "the divine right of kings."

Only a year ago the 28th of September George II ascended to the throne of Greece after his father had been forced to abdicate for the second time. But even in that brief period the former crown prince and his beautiful queen, Elizabeth, the daughter of Queen Marie of Rumania, have learned how hard it is to please any of the people very much of the time. On November 12 of this year the military Republican faction in Greece asked the king to take two months vacation. George failed to leave as quickly as desired and he later found it impossible to go and remained a prisoner in the palace.

Ever since 1832 Greece has had a turbulent time with her various kings, but the disease with which she is affected now seems to be a general European ailment.

Had Dream of Balkan Empire.

The abdication of Nicholas of Montenegro was in another way symbolic of the general situation in Europe. It represented the thwarting of his ambitions for a greater empire, in his case with Serbia in the Balkans just as the motor car rush of the kaiser for Holland on the midnight of November 9, 1918, symbolized the wrecking of his dreams of world empire.

In August, 1910, Nicholas became sufficiently bold to take the title of king. Before then he had been archduke. He had been very popular and had taught his people to fight the Turk and how to work. For himself he learned how to play American poker, and this did not help the Montenegrin treasury to any extent.

After his overthrow he set up a court at Neuilly, near Paris, where he amused himself for some time and tried vainly to get back his crown. Nicholas had six beautiful daughters. Helena became queen of Italy. Another was the mother of Alexander of Serbia and another a Russian grand duchess. He died at Antibes, France, on March 1, 1921, after many vain attempts to recover his throne.

The story of the tragic ending of the czar of Russia's vacillating reign has been told so often and has in it so much of romance, adventure and intrigue that it is familiar to all. Nicholas II had reigned twenty years when the World war broke out. The revolution came in March, 1917.

Death of Russia's Czar.

The czar and his family then went into exile in Siberia. On his way from the capital he mentions in his diary: "Sentries and whole regiments I passed were silent and did not even salute. My spirit is heavy." Their failure to salute was an omen of the end, for the czar had forever lost his hold upon the people and from that time his wanderings did not cease. When he returned to Russia he was held by the Bolshevists.

With his wife and children Nicholas II was killed on the night of July 16, 1918, at Ekaterinburg. The Soviet government finally issued an official report of the arrest and slaying of the Romanoff family. Of the twelve monarchs who have lost their thrones the end of Czar Nicholas II is undoubtedly the most tragic of all.

Chronologically King Ferdinand of Bulgaria was the third ruler to lose his crown. During the World war he had managed to hold on to it with one hand and keep his sword in the other.

In 1918, however, this became increasingly difficult. Ferdinand had to devote both hands to his sword, and while doing so the Bulgarian regal bonnet skidded away.

Czar Ferdinand had held iron sway while it lasted. In September, 1918, he started hastily off for Coburg, taking enough of the family fortune to keep him in good spirits for the rest of his life. Prince Boris succeeded Ferdinand. Only a month later his abdication was reported, but Boris III is still on the Bulgarian throne.

With the defeat of the central powers in 1918 there was a grand exit of emperors, kings, thrones, crowns and scepters. The kaiser and Emperor Karl of Austria bowed themselves off the stage at about the same time. Then Friederich August, king of Saxony, who had been ruling since October, 1904, was ousted from grace. On November 16, 1918, King Ludwig III renounced the throne of Bavaria. It required another couple of weeks for the venerable William II, king of Wurttemberg, to follow suit, but he did so on November 30. He insisted upon retaining the title of Duke of Wurttemberg, and lived at Bebenhausen castle, in the Black forest, most of the time after that until his death on October 2, 1921.

Bavarian Monarch Flees.

Emperor Karl of Austria went to Switzerland and made two unsuccessful attempts to regain his throne. These royalist revolutions resulted in the allies exiling him to Funchal, where he died in 1922.

Ludwig III of Bavaria took the throne in 1913 when his father, Luitpold, died. On the November day in 1918 that he renounced his throne his wife, Marie Theresa, who was princess royal of Hungary and Bohemia, died suddenly. This double calamity greatly affected Ludwig.

He fled with other royal members of his household to the Austrian Tyrol. He died at Sarvar castle in Hungary in October, 1921.

The exit of King Friederich August of Saxony was less dignified than the abdication of Ludwig. The Saxony monarch was forcibly deposed on Armistice day, 1918; with two grand dukes. The grand duke of Oldenberg, whose house dated back to 1088, and the grand duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who had been on his throne since 1901, were both deprived of their thrones with Friederich August.

With a new government and an attempt at independence King Fuad I took charge of Egyptian affairs early in 1922. Under his reign visitors in Egypt suffered more outrages than had occurred in many years. Independence had been proclaimed and a constitution adopted, but the country was more troubled than before. Finally, in November, 1922, the various parties united to oust the king. Fuad purchased a palace near the outskirts of Rome as a precautionary measure and was justified in his selection, for he was asked to abdicate.

A development which aroused much more interest was the dramatic abdication of Mahomet VI, sultan of Turkey, on November 17, 1922. In April, 1922, the sultan appealed to the Moslem world to ignore the divorcing of the sultanate and caliphate by the Angora government. But this did not stop the growth of the Angora party or the weakening of Mohammed's influence. Early on the morning of November 17, 1922, the sultan fled from his palace in Constantinople and placed himself under British care. He took passage to Malta on the British battleship Malaya and has been living in seclusion at San Remo.

The late King Constantine lost his crown twice since 1916. He ascended to the throne in March, 1913, but the spring of 1917 brought much trouble to the Greek king, who was closely tied up with the cause of his brother-in-law, the kaiser. On June 11 he was deposed by the allies and fled to Switzerland. A plebiscite was held in Greece in December, 1920, to determine whether Constantine should come back. He was recalled.

When Constantine returned to Athens from his exile he was given a tremendous ovation, and a great wave of popularity and patriotism followed. Reverses of the army in Asia Minor and its final defeat turned the tide against the king. He abdicated the second time on September 27, 1922, and he died the following January at Palermo, Sicily.

Official Inch Not Inch to Lumbermen

Washington, D. C.—How thick is an inch? Lumbermen of the United States and representatives of the industries which use and distribute lumber decided, with Secretary of Commerce Hoover as referee, that in board an inch may be both 25-32 and 26-32 of the ordinary inch when the board is dressed ready for use.

For four years in a general way, and for the last 18 months in particular, lumber users and committees of the Department of Commerce and Forest Service have been trying to agree on how thick an inch board should be.

It is agreed that 25-32 is to be the standard thickness of an inch board and 26-32 an extra standard board.

New York Firm Makes New Pins From Old Ones

New York.—A company has been formed here for the purpose of refinishing used pins and restoring them to their original newness.

Not that representatives of the company are to patrol the streets gathering up discarded pins, but it is said that in some large dressmaking establishments the pin bill sometimes reaches as high as $1,500 annually.

Used only once the pins are removed and allowed to drop on the floor, where they are swept away. Even if gathered up at the close of the day the pins are too dirty to be used again on fine fabrics. The company mentioned purposes to effect a saving in the pin item by taking all the used pins, cleaning and refinishing them.

SAYS HE SLEW WIFE IN ITALY 14 YEARS AGO

Man Charged With Carrying Concealed Weapons Makes Confession

White Plains, N. Y.—County Judge William F. Bleakley and court attaches were astounded the other day, when Natale Zucco, forty-two years old, of Mount Kisco, who had been arraigned on the charge of carrying a pistol, admitted that on August 18, 1909, he killed his wife, Carmela, in the town of Radicena, Province of Reggio, Calabria, and that he had never been arrested for the crime. Zucco, questioned by Judge Bleakley, appeared to be proud that he had killed his wife, because, he alleged, she had been unfaithful to him.

Zucco, who has been arrested forty times, on charges ranging from assault to murder, told Judge Bleakley that while he was living in Chicago he received information from a friend in Radicena that his wife had been unfaithful to him. He said he went to Italy immediately and confronted her.

"How did you kill her?" Judge Bleakley asked.

"I shot her five times," the prisoner answered.

"Why did you do it?"

"Because she no friend of mine."

Eludes Italian Police.

Zucco said he eluded the Italian police and fled across France. He engaged passage from Marseilles and returned to America, taking up his residence in Mount Kisco. Although arrested thirty-two times in this country he always has managed to escape sentence.

Shot Her Five Times.

The story of the murder of his wife was brought out when Zucco pleaded guilty to the pistol-carrying charge. He was not sentenced, as efforts will be made by Deputy Sheriff Frank Cherico and Judge Bleakley to deport him.

According to a report submitted by the New York Police department to Judge Bleakley, Zucco in 1909 boarded the steamship Oceana at Hoboken and kidnapped from a berth Francesca Palladino who was being deported after conviction on several charges.

When the girl was arrested later she alleged Zucco was the chief of one of the most dangerous blackhand gangs operating in this country. One of Zucco's lieutenants, Rocco Cassone, she said, sailed on the same steamer with Lieutenant Petrosino and was the man who shot and killed the New York detective in Italy.

She charged Zucco shot her when she threatened to bare Zucco's blackhand schemes to the police.

Zucco boasted before Judge Bleakley that he had been arrested and imprisoned eight times in Italy for assault, conspiracy, resisting officers and numerous other charges. He denied, however, that he was implicated in a murder in Erie, Pa., for which he was arrested in 1913 and discharged on a technicality.

Pistol as Nut Cracker

Newcastle, Pa.—Looking about for something with which to crack the shell of a coconut William Kennedy, twenty years old, spied a revolver in a drawer in the kitchen. With the coconut firmly held between his knees he battered away with the butt of the revolver to get at the meat and milk within. After several minutes he struck the nut an exceptionally heavy blow and the revolver was discharged, the bullet entering his abdomen, killing him.

"Miss America" Declares Tanlac Wonderful Health Giving Tonic

Miss Campbell in "Miss America" crown which she has won on two occasions.

Miss Mary Katherine Campbell, twice proclaimed "Miss America," has taken TANLAC and endorses it in a statement recently given to the women of America. In this statement, Miss America declares that Good Health is the basis of all Beauty, and advises women who would be beautiful to "first find good health."

Her complete statement as given is as follows: "I consider it a great privilege to be able to tell the thousands of women everywhere what a great tonic TANLAC is. Health is the basis of all beauty. Without good health, one is apt to be rundown, nervous, underweight, high-strung, anemic. Indigestion drives the roses from a woman's cheeks and robs her of that radiant quality of womanhood that is real beauty.

"I have taken TANLAC and I do not hesitate to say that it is a wonderful health-giving tonic. It has brought relief and good health to many women, and with good health one may have a measure of beauty that will overcome shortcomings in face and figure.

"Rosy cheeks, sparkling eyes, a well-rounded figure, a lovable disposition, go hand in hand with good health. To those searching for beauty, I would say—'First of all, Find Good Health.' The TANLAC treatment has proven itself a boon to womankind, and I recommend it."

Miss Campbell has written a booklet on Health and Beauty which may be secured by filling out the coupon below.

Pay on Installment Plan.

The New York Nursery and Child's hospital has devised a plan for welcoming the stork on the installment plan. Prospective mothers register in advance for reservations and pay $7 or $16 per month for seven months, according to whether a ward or private room is required. At the time of baby's arrival all is paid so that the family exchequer is not overtaxed all at once.

London's Unhealthy Areas.

In some of the more crowded parts of London, the "unhealthy areas," there is an average of 53 houses and 415 persons to the acre, according to statistics gathered by a committee of the ministry of health. The "standard of density" recommended by this committee is 12 houses and 60 persons to the acre.

Why Doctors Warn Against Coffee or Tea for Children

THE reason is simple. Coffee and tea contain drugs which tend to irritate the delicate nervous system of children, and so upset health.

The Federal Bureau of Education includes in its rules to promote health among growing school children, the warning that "children should not drink tea or coffee at all."

Why confine the warning to children?

You are careful to protect the health of your children; why, then, take chances with your own health, when a change from coffee or tea is made so easy by Postum.

Postum is a delicious, pure cereal beverage—ideal for children and satisfying to adults.

Announcement

FOR CONGRESS

We are authorized to announce the name of William I. Swoope, of Clearfield, Pa., as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the 23rd District, composed of the Counties of Centre, Clearfield, Cameron and McKean, at the Spring Primary on April 22nd, 1924.

FOR ASSEMBLY

THE REPUBLICAN is authorized to announce the candidacy of John L. Holmes, of State College, for the Republican nomination for Assembly, subject to the decision of the Republican primary election to be held on Tuesday, April 22nd., 1924. Mr. Holmes respectfully asks the support of all Republicans, assuring them that it will be duly appreciated.

FOR NATIONAL DELEGATE

I hereby announce my candidacy for delegate from the 23d Congressional District to the National Convention of the Republican Party, subject to the decision of the voters at the primary election to be held April 22, 1924.

If I am chosen I will support Calvin Coolidge for President

JAMES A. CONNELLY,
Ludlow, McKean, Co., Pa.

FIRM FOR COOLIDGE.

The Coolidge for President sentiment is dominant throughout the United States. It is confined to no one section. It is as strong in the West as in the East. Southern Republicans are as pronounced for Coolidge as are those in the North. It is not surprising that Washington despatches tell of discouragement among the Democratic leaders, some of whom frankly doubt the ability of McAdoo or any other Democrat to win over Coolidge.

It is inconceivable that Pennsylvania Republicans will do other than send an instructed delegation for Coolidge to the Cleveland convention. Pennsylvania should take a commanding position in the matter, and not be a trailer climbing onto the band wagon at the eleventh hour. Talk by some persons of Pennsylvania indorsing a "favorite son" and eventually swinging into the Coolidge column is suggestive of vacillating leadership. We have had enough of this kind of leadership in the last two years. Leaders must really lead, if they would hope to command followers. If they are unable to command followers they should and will quickly disappear as leaders. Our State Republican leadership is on trial. If it fails to rise to the emergency the rank and file of Republicans throughout the State may be expected to choose leaders who will really lead. There can be no compromise with any person claiming to be a Republican who is biting at the heels of President Coolidge and whose sole motive is personal advancement, not party success.

TAKES RIGHT COURSE

We admire the course taken by James A. Connelly, of McKean County, in formally announcing that he is a candidate for Republican national delegate. Mr. Connelly favors the nomination of President Coolidge, and he comes out into the open and says so. He commits himself to vote for Coolidge at the Cleveland convention. There is no pussyfooting in his candidacy. His is a straight-from-the-shoulder declaration that instantly commands confidence and respect. Supporters of President Coolidge in this section, and they are legion, will know that by electing Mr. Connelly their wishes will be carried out in the national convention. On the basis of his being for Coolidge, and committing himself to the nomination of the President, this newspaper heartily indorses and commends and will actively support the candidacy of Mr. Connelly. In just as positive terms, this newspaper states that it will not support any candidate for national delegate who is for Coolidge but does not publicly so declare himself.

Merchants Get Together.

Notes on Red Cross Work.

During the months of November and December the nurse at Bellefonte, Mrs. Merrill Hagan, made a total of 387 visits, spent 36 hours in the office, had 52 babies in attendance at the well baby clinics. Part of the day was spent in schools, during which time she inspected 174 pupils and from the last medical inspection records, found that 82 of these had defects of eyes, teeth, nose, throat or skin. Followed into the homes, only 17 were found to have the defects corrected, although ample time has elapsed since parents were notified of defects that should be attended to. Cost of maintenance of the nursing service for the 2 months was $238.92, including upkeep of car. Fees collected were $23.45. The monthly schedule of the nurse is: Office hours at High School building, 9:30 A. M.; Parochial school, 10 A. M.; Bishop St. building, 10:30. The afternoons are devoted to nursing cases, of which 10 are chronic.

UPHOLDS MOTOR LAWS

Federation Club Secretary Makes Statement of Aims.

Growing misapprehension on the part of some members of motor clubs as to their duties as organizations in connection with infractions of the state motor-vehicle laws has resulted in the following statement being published by J. Clyde Myton, secretary of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation, and it has been sent to the sixty-two clubs affiliated with the federation:

"Motor clubs are not organized for the protection of law-breakers in spite of a belief to the contrary on the part of certain officials of one or two clubs. This belief has a very dangerous tendency to breed contempt for traffic rules and motor-vehicle laws and is one of the important factors at work to force drastic and the reasonable regulatory laws upon our statue books. That is why I feel that a warning is necessary at this time.

"For eighteen years I have been active in motorist's organizations and for that reason I know whereof I speak when I say that drastic regulation is imminent if the growing contempt for traffic laws is not checked by the united action of law-abiding and self-respecting motorists and motor clubs. Because here and there a country 'squire and his constables take advantage of the opportunities for graft offered by the law and establish traps, not for the enforcement of the law but for the snaring of fines, is no reason why the efforts of a conscientious magistrate to check flagrant and dangerous violations of the law should be fought at every turn by a motorists' law.

"I know positively, that the war waged by a large motor club upon a certain justice of the peace on one of the highways leading into Philadelphia has had a dangerous effect. I have heard motorists who have never been near that 'squire curse him because he tried to enforce the law referring to dirty, obscured or improperly placed license tags. I believe that most of them did it unthinkingly, yet dirty or obscured tags constitute one of the real evils of automobiling. They are a protection to the reckless driver and a hindrance to officers of the law."

Freight is Good Here.

Freight shipments and receipts are recognized by authorities on business conditions as one of the best guiding signs. It is very interesting to note, therefore, the following statement of W. T. Kelly, agent at the P. R. R. freight station here. Mr. Kelly was asked how freight compared this year with the same period last year. He replied: "The average is about the same. The first week in January was slightly better, the second week a little less, so that the average is not changed. This is not true all over the lines, however, freight falling off in many places. It is good to note that the freight here has held up to last year." Several local business men have also reported that their records show a nice increase in business as compared to the same period last year. They point, however, that there is always a dull period just after Christmas and we are now emerging from this period.

State Farm Products Show.

The State Farm Products Show will be held in Harrisburg next week, Jan. 22—26. Meetings of all farmers' organizations will be held during the week. HOPE TO REDEEM THE ILLITERATES

Ten Million Persons in U. S. Who Cannot Read or Write.

SOME SECTIONS VERY BAD

The census takers at the beginning of each decade are supposed to ask every person in the United States this question, "Can you read and write?" Five million men and women in this country, in round numbers, answered in 1920, "I cannot." They were too honest to deny their illiteracy or, in some cases, were no doubt lacking in pride and sensitiveness about it, or were led by fear of punishment to divulge what, to many illiterates, is their dark secret. Millions, however, failed to confess and deliberately concealed their illiteracy. Some in their ignorance having the conception of Uncle Sam as a meddlesome old man, decided that their illiteracy was none of his business. Others deluded themselves into thinking that the scrawl which they could trace across the paper was writing, although no one else would ever classify it as such.

10,000,000 Illiterates in United States.

In its study of illiteracy conditions the illiteracy commission of the National Educational association has carefully analyzed the statistics gathered by the federal census bureau and has followed the matter into the states and localities whence these reports were made up. The commission is convinced that the census taken by the federal government in 1920 showing 4,931,905 illiterates, and based on the confession of the individual, is not a complete and accurate report. If a careful census were taken in which every individual should be put to the test of reading simple paragraphs in the newspapers and writing simple sentences, the number of illiterates in this country, according to the commission, would approximate 10,000,000 and the number of near-illiterates would be equally as large. Twenty million illiterates and near-illiterates in the United States! It does not take a vivid imagination to see the potentialities in this vast illiterate population, or a mathematician to calculate what they might add to the nation if redeemed.

Confused by Dollar Bill.

Some illiterates are grossly ignorant. A woman who learned recently to read and write said, "I didn't know how ignorant I was. Why, I didn't know a $1 bill from a $2 bill until I was twenty-four years of age." A teacher who taught an illiterate man of thirty exclaimed, "I didn't know such colossal ignorance could exist. I could teach Ben anything and it would be something that he didn't know. He didn't even know how many months there are in the year." An officer in the American army said in my presence in 1918, "I have three men in my company, native born, who cannot count up to four." Some illiterates have knowledge of a sort, or rather a half-knowledge, which could be speedily extended, completed and adapted to use if connected with the world through education. Davey, the great tree surgeon and author, who learned to read and write after the age of twenty-nine, is one of the numerous examples of this fact.

Inequality of opportunity was never more strikingly pictured than in the illiteracy figures on record at Washington. They tell the story of youths in one section who enjoy the best of opportunities and the tragic story of youths in another who enjoy practically none. There is a state with little more than 1 per cent illiteracy and there is a state with 21.9. There are nine states with little more than 2 per cent of its people illiterate and there are eleven states where 10 per cent of the people are unable to read and write.

Crusade Twelve Years Old.

There are some communities where illiterate men have no chance for education unless they go to the penitentiary or join the army, but the illiteracy crusade, which started twelve years ago, is gathering momentum and has now reached most of the states. No provision was made originally in any state school system for the education of adults, and no plan existed prior to 1911 for redeeming illiterates. An individual would now and then teach some illiterate to read and write. Champ Clark used to relate to his fellow congressmen how he taught a man and his two grown daughters after the Civil war. But as a wholesale undertaking the removal of adult illiteracy has waited long. It was generally understood that when one grew up illiterate he was to remain so, no matter how bright his intellect might be or how anxious he was to learn. The school age was fixed at from six to twenty, and no one over that age was supposed to enter school. Most of the states are now making some provision for illiterates either through an organized illiteracy campaign, special schools for adults, home teachers or other methods. True, they are limiting this opportunity to foreign-born illiterates in places, leaving the native-born in illiteracy, and in others are confining the opportunity to those under certain ages.

The barrier of age to educational opportunity must crumble just as the barriers of race, sex, class and religion have given away. In some of the southern states it was once forbidden by law to teach a negro to read and write. The fight for equal educational opportunities for women in the United States was not easily won. As illustrious a personage as Benjamin Franklin was not certain that it was worth while to teach them. He wrote in his autobiography: "A question was somehow or other started between Collins and me as to the propriety of educating the female sex in learning and their ability to study. He was of the opinion that it was improper and I took the contrary side, perhaps a little for dispute's sake."

Many Eager to Learn.

The situation is distinctly hopeful as regards the eagerness of the illiterates for knowledge and their ability to learn. Even those who are said to be the most unapproachable and to care the least for knowledge, the Indian women on the reservations, could be induced to learn and could be taught the rudiments in a few months. There is no letter in the alphabet or word in the English language as difficult to learn as the scrolls, whorls and intricate designs they do in bead work and with elk teeth and porcupine quills to adorn the costume of an Indian brave. They are government wards, and an order from "The Great White Father" would put every one of them under instruction.

"The philosopher, the saint, the hero, the wise, the good, the great man very often lies concealed in a plebeian whom proper education might have disinterred and brought to light," said Addison. One wonders how many geniuses might be found among these forty million if "disinterred and brought to light" and set to serving the nation. If there should be one Booker T. Washington, Edison or Lincoln among them, although it cost $20,000,000 to bring him out, it would be worth the price.—Cora Wilson Stewart, chairman illiteracy commission, National Educational association.

The Congressional Record.

The Congressional Record, a printed journal of the daily proceedings of congress, has been issued since 1799. Up to that time only secret sessions were held by the senate, but after that date all regular sessions were open to the public and publication was required except in the case of "executive sessions." Until 1824 this publication was known as the "Annals of Congress"; from 1825 to 1837 as the "Register of Debates"; from 1837 to 1874 as the "Congressional Globe." In the latter year it became the "Congressional Record."

Truly Ironical.

"Pa," said Clarence, "what is the irony of fate?" "Well, there's the case of old man Fogey, he said he would rather walk than ride in automobiles because they were so dangerous, and while he was seeking safety by walking an automobile knocked him into kingdom come," replied his dad.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

He Didn't Mean That.

A newly married widow overheard her second husband telling a friend: "Yes, I got a wife and four children to boot."

"You just try booting my children," said the lady with vigor.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

OVER THE COUNTY

T. F. Meyer, for 22 years a successful general merchant of Millheim, is closing out his stock of goods to retire. A. H. Offenberg, of New York, known as one of the most skillful of sales managers for such events, is in charge of the sale. Mr. Meyer was previously in business at Coburn and Aaronsburg, locating in Millheim in 1902.

Sheep are not generally kept on farms in Penn's valley because they are not regarded as profitable on good and expensive farm land. John A. Heckman, however, considers his return from 18 as well worth consideration. Mr. Heckman has 17 ewes and a buck. His gross returns for 1923 were $382. Sixteen lambs were sold for $242.95 and the remainder was for wool. He still has the 18 sheep.

Petitions are being prepared to condemn the spurs of turnpikes in Penn and Miles Twps., thus to do away with the toll gates regarded as nuisances. One of the turnpikes leads from Millheim to Coburn and the other from Millheim through the Woodward Narrows, where it intersects with the road from Centre Hall to Rebersburg. It is said these roads have the only tollgates in Centre County and it will be easy to forget them.

Lengthening of the days is becoming noticeable. Robin Redbreast and the blue birds have not been reported, however, in spite of the mildness of the weather on some days.

The "Tyrone Division Special" is the title of an interesting booklet "published semi-monthly in the interest of safety first." One of the interesting features is a full-page picture showing Charles Langenbacher and a magnificent bear he shot while hunting near Unionville. The bear was shot directly through the heart, which organ is shown in the photo.

The dwelling of the Superior Silica Brick Co. at Port Matilda that had been occupied by Herbert Nichols and family was burned to the ground one day last week. Mr. Nichols left his 5 children in the house and went to the home of a neighbor for his wife. During his absence the fire broke out and burned the dwelling and the household effects. The oldest child managed to get the children from the house and they were taken to the home of a neighbor, a half-mile distant. While the family feels very keenly the loss of their home, they are indeed fortunate that the children were not burned.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Looking Ahead

LAST Spring a total of 350,000 people were disappointed in not being able to obtain deliveries of Ford Cars and Trucks, as orders were placed faster than cars could be produced.

The demand for Ford Cars and Trucks this Spring will, according to all indications, be far greater than last Spring.

Winter buying has been increasing at a greater rate than ever before.

Actual retail deliveries the past 60 days totaled 308,170 Ford Cars and Trucks, an increase of 1,961 a day over a year ago.

Over 200,000 people have already ordered Ford products on our purchase plan, the majority of whom will take delivery in the Spring.

The above facts are given with the suggestion that you list your order promptly with a Ford dealer if you contemplate the purchase of a Ford Car or Truck for use this Spring or Summer and wish to avoid delay in delivery.

Ford Motor Company
Detroit, Michigan

You need not pay cash for your car. You can arrange to make a small deposit down, taking care of the balance in easy payments. Or, you can buy on the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan. This puts you on the preferred order list and insures delivery of your car at a time to be determined by yourself.

The drivers and horses escaped with a few scratches and bruises. Passersby gave aid, repairs were made and the journey of 16 miles completed.

The Robert E. Reed home in the Glades was all aglow on Saturday evening. The affair was a real surprise for his good wife, Margaret. It was duly admitted that a man can fool a woman. She was busy with the evening chores when the onslaught was made and the home was filled to standing room. She was the recipient of many beautiful and useful presents; also, a roll of long green. Choice refreshments were served full and plenty. At a late hour, the guests took their departure, wishing Mrs. Reed many returns of her natal day.

Port Matilda

The Community Welfare Association, on the boosting of good roads, had a meeting at Unionville on Friday evening, January 11th, which was very largely attended by persons all along Bald Eagle valley, a great many from Bellefonte and one man from Williamsport, Grant Hoover, who made a wonderful talk on the proposed new road. Quite a number of Bellefonte people spoke, also several others. Among them was Thomas Beaver. On Saturday evening, a meeting was held here in the I. O. O. F. building for the purpose of answering a number of questions on a blank sent up by the State Highway Department, on a form prepared by them as to the reason for this road to be built and where it would benefit. Church goers, school children, farmers marketing, and tourists from every direction will benefit. This valley road, just now, is almost impassible. On Monday, a committee of two, went to Philipsburg to call on Hon. Harry B. Scott, and a number of other residents there. W. E. Williams and H. C. Woodring were selected as members of the committee. Mr. Scott gave us some very good information and he is doing his best to secure a concrete road in Bald Eagle valley. At the meeting in Unionville, on Jan. 11th, a committee was appointed to go to Harrisburg to call on State Highway Commissioner Wright. The committee is composed of H. B. Scott, Philipsburg; Thomas Beaver, Bellefonte; O. C. Miller, Tyrone; W. E. Williams, Port Matilda; Howard Holzworth, Unionville. Mr. Scott will arrange a date with Mr. Wright when this committee may call on him. We also have had persons who wrote Mr. Wright a personal letter and have had answers which are very encouraging. We feel that there will be some concrete road built in 1924. Even the ladies who wrote a personal letter, received a reply of encouragement.

Dr. Locke, from Bellefonte, was called to Port Matilda on Sunday evening and he said, "If I had known the condition of this Bald Eagle valley road, I don't think I would have come." We surely need a good doctor in Port Matilda.

On Monday afternoon, Dr. Piper, of Tyrone, was called to L. Y. Greene's. He said he could hardly get here and would go home via the Halfmoon valley road.

Mrs. J. H. Crain, of this place, is very sick with rheumatism. We hope for her recovery.

H. B. Lykens, of the firm of H. B. Lykens and Sons, is ill at this writing.

We are having very mild winter weather up to this writing. No snow and very hard freezing. Surely this is bad for the winter grain, which would be better covered with snow.

Snap Shots from Snow Shoe — and — Krumbs from Klarence.

We deeply regret to note the passing away of Mrs. Annie Cole, who died from pneumonia at her home in Snow Shoe last Thursday morning. Mrs. Cole was of a quiet, unassuming, kindly disposition, a good neighbor and true friend. As such she will be sadly missed in the community. To the bereaved family, we extend sincerest sympathy, as no one can realize the sorrow of losing a mother except those who have passed through the same ordeal.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Dixon were called to Coalport on Tuesday to attend the funeral of P. Galloway, a close relative of the family, who died very suddenly on Sunday at his late home at that place.

Mrs. A. B. Northcraft, who has been ill from grip, is reported to be somewhat improved.

A rare treat is in store for all who attend the home talent comedy-drama, "An Arizona Cowboy," at the Pastime Theatre in Snow Shoe on Tuesday evening, January 22nd. The play will be rendered by the very best talent in our home section, and a splendid success is assured. In addition to that, the proceeds will be devoted to the St. Mary's church, which is of course a most worthy cause. In fact, there is everything to command a capacity house when the curtain goes up. Hill's orchestra, from Bellefonte, has been engaged for this note-worthy attraction, and in addition there will be various musical solos and other features that cannot help but please. The cast for what we expect will prove to be the best home talent play given here in many years, follows:

MRS. YOUNG ENTHUSIASTIC

Cannot Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Enough. Sick Women Read This Letter

Charleston, S. C.—"I was completely run-down and not able to do my housework. I just dragged myself around and did not have energy enough to get up when I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in your books and learned about it. I got benefit from the very first bottle. I continued to take it for some time, and now I am doing all my own work, even washing and ironing, and never felt better in my life. I tell all my friends that the change in my health is due to but one thing and that is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. ANNIE YOUNG, 16 Amherst St., Charleston, S.C.

The reason for such a letter from Mrs. Young is apparent. She got well and is grateful. Recently a nation-wide canvass of women purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made, and 98 out of 100 reported that they received benefit from taking it.

Just because the Vegetable Compound has been helping other women is a good reason why it should help you. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Shoes of Skeleton Identify Lost Boy

Parents of Jersey City Child End Eight-Year Hunt.

Greeley, Pa.—The markings on a pair of child's shoes made it nearly certain that the small skull and other bones found in underbrush not far from Greeley were the remains of Jimmy Glass, the four-year-old boy whose disappearance on May 12, 1915, caused a worldwide search.

Charles L. Glass of Jersey City, father of the boy, washed the clay from the shoes and found the maker's name cut on the bottom of the shoe under the instep. The boy had worn a pair of nearly-new shoes of this make when he disappeared. The only other relics of clothing that were found were rusty metal buttons and buckles from the overalls.

How he came to his death is not known, but it is thought that he had died of fright, exhaustion and hunger after losing his way and wandering through a thick maze of scrub oak, maple and other underbrush. His body was less than 100 feet from a wood road and about a mile from the main road. It was found there by Otto Winkler, who was hunting deer.

The bones were all found in a small space between the skull and the shoes, indicating that the body had been undisturbed since his death. The only wild animal that might have attacked him is the bear. It is years since bears have been seen near Greeley, but they are sometimes reported only a few miles from here.

Whole World Combed for Him.

The boy and his parents had been at the Faust farm, Greeley, about a mile from the place where the body was found. Miss Glass left Jimmie playing outside the house when she went to the village to mail a letter. He was gone when she returned. From that day until now no trace of him was found.

The search was carried on first in the village, then among neighboring villages, then all over the United States and finally abroad. The boy's picture and description went all over the world. Positive identifications were made again and again and the parents experienced many times an agony of suspense followed by the disappointment of discovering that the identified child was not theirs after all.

Death From Exhaustion.

Dr. J. H. Ross gave the certificate of death, which he wrote was due to "exposure and exhaustion, being lost in the woods and having wandered from home."

Capt. Joseph Rooney, who has traveled a total of 48,000 miles to look at scores of boys erroneously thought to be Jimmy Glass, said that there was no doubt that the search was now at an end.

"I am still convinced," he said, "that the story told by Edward Faust, the boarding-house keeper, and Fred Lucky, a boy, is true, and that is that they saw two men and a woman in an automobile carry the boy away after wrapping him in a robe. I believe that he must have died, either from exhaustion or from fright, and that they then took him to this place in the woods and planted the body there."

Mother's Mind at Peace.

Coroner J. H. Ludwig said that no inquest was necessary and gave the father and mother permission to take the relics away. They were placed in a square box and carried by Captain Rooney of Jersey City.

On arriving at Jersey City, Mr. and Mrs. Glass were escorted to their home.

"We had hoped until the very last," said Mr. Glass, "that the boy would be found alive. Since that was impossible, we are glad that the search is finally at an end."

The mother showed five large boxes of letters which had come to her from every state in the country and many parts of the world. Most of the letters were written by persons confident that they could lead the parents to the missing child. At times the family was trying to follow seven or eight of these false trails at once. Some of the letters were written with such detail and positiveness that the relatives of the boy had their hopes raised to the highest point. Years of crushing disappointment had not taken away their capacity to be tortured in this way, and plausible reports had within the last year caused the mother and father to go through all this emotional stress again.

"My mind is at peace, now," said the mother, pointing at the heaps of letters. "We had hoped so that we would have him again. Since that could not be, it is a consolation to have the body."

Danube Being Dredged.

Vienna.—Dredges have been at work on the Danube, and this natural trade route through Central Europe to the Black sea, Constantinople and Odessa has been greatly improved and developed. New boats with larger carrying capacity are being built for the spring trade, and transshipment facilities are being developed. Completion of the Danube-Rhine and the Danube-Elbe canals also will add to the river's importance as a shipping route.

Six Diseases Still Puzzle to Doctors

Cures Being Sought for Cancer, "Flu," Etc.

Detroit.—Medical science has made tremendous strides in the last century in conquering diseases. In times past the cure of disease was given over to sorcerers, magicians and astrologers with their charms and weird potions. In the last century, however, medical scientists have elevated medicine from an art to a science and they have discovered both cause and cure for many ailments.

For three generations laboratory workers all over the world have wrestled with the problem of influenza, both from the standpoint of cause and cure, but very little more is known about the disease than at the beginning of the inquiry. It is assumed, of course, that the disease is caused by a germ which, so far, has never been isolated.

Cancer Biggest Mystery.

Cancer, since the entrenchment of civilization, has been the pre-eminent mystery of medicine. Not only has its cause never been satisfactorily determined nor a specific cure for it discovered, but in spite of the concerted endeavor of the medical profession it steadily increases. Some insist that it is purely a disease of civilization and a result of wrong methods of living, attributing it chiefly to errors of diet. Others assert that it is a germ disease, and two or three investigators at different times have declared their belief that they had isolated the particular species of bacteria responsible for it. Others assert (and this theory has many adherents) that cancer is the manifestation of embryonic cells run riot; that when subjected to prolonged irritation—to heat, for example, as in the lip cancers of pipe smokers—the cells develop abnormal growth and carry on their work of devastation.

Among the known purely epidemic diseases none is anticipated with greater dread or occasions more alarm in this country when it gains a foothold than poliomyelitis, known to physicians as "polio" and to the laity as infantile paralysis. That it originates from a germ—a variety of bacterium named streptococcus, so-called from its shape and arrangement—is the belief of the majority of physicians.

Takes Heavy Toll.

The historic epidemic of 1916 in this country, which began in Brooklyn, totaled some 27,000 cases with a large number of fatalities, leaving behind it a pathetic trail of paralyzed and otherwise crippled children. No specific remedy for it is known; the treatment is symptomatic only, and partial recovery from its disabilities is painfully slow.

Pellagra, long known in different parts of Europe, and which has afflicted sections of Italy for 300 years or more, has been one of the big mysteries of the medical profession. For more than a decade it has prevailed in the South to a greater or less extent, the patients in a single year running as high as 50,000 and filling hospitals and insane asylums. Those afflicted to a severe degree with pellagra present a pathetic picture. Not only do they develop loathsome skin lesions, but their nervous systems are shattered and in many cases insanity develops.

When Dr. Joseph L. Goldberger of the United States public health service took charge of the federal government's investigation into the cause of pellagra a few years ago, after a few months' work he arrived at the conclusion that the disease resulted solely from dietetic errors. Those who studied his experiments and their results for the most part agreed with him; but it is not too much to say that to vast numbers of the world's population the disease is still a mystery. On the basis of Dr. Goldberger's conclusions, the remedy, of course, is a properly balanced diet. Still, however, cases of pellagra are found in the South year after year, just as sporadic cases of infantile paralysis are continually occurring since the historic epidemic of 1916.

The most recent visitant to this country in the way of mysterious disease is encephalitis lethargica, to which the name "sleeping sickness" has erroneously been given, for it is a distinct malady from the true sleeping sickness of Africa, of which the cause is known as well as well defined methods of dealing with it.

Famous Bell Is Heard Again

In observance of the birthday of Joseph Henry, pioneer electrical inventor of the Nineteenth century, radio stations broadcasted on Dec. 17 addresses on Henry's life and achievements. The little bell, which in 1831 gave forth the first sound ever heard at a distance by the use of an electro-magnet, was rung again. Above, holding the bell, is Dr. John M. Clarke, director New York State museum at Albany, which arranged the celebration, and, holding the magnet, is E. W. Rice, Jr., honorary chairman of directors, General Electric company.

FLAPPERS

By DOROTHY DONAHUE

(©, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

LAWRENCE WHEET, forced to it, accompanied his irresponsible, wealthy, jazz-provoking college roommate home—one of those monstrous, milk-white residences with rolling, stubby lawns and twisting driveways, that made you think of gleaming jewels in satin-lined cases, gold braid and tinsel.

"And, oh, boy—wait till you see my home town flappers! They'll go big, Lorry."

Lorry wasn't so sure. He was an intellectual but not a highbrow. He smiled tolerantly at the ignorant and never failed to learn something from those blessed with keener intelligence than he.

"I'm afraid I can't go," he told "Pep" Marston regretfully. "You know I'm getting shabby on my Latin and this holiday will give me an opportunity to polish up."

"Rubbish! You'll be a second Merton Munn in a few years."

Lawrence shuddered. Merton Munn was twenty-six, tall, painfully thin, sickly, and a sort of tottering support for his huge bone-rimmed glasses. He was branded "book-worm."

"I'll go," said Lawrence fervently.

Almost immediately upon arrival Lorry found himself surrounded by flappers, long-skirted, short-haired, wise-eyed little gamins that were compliments to his appearance. Lawrence's brain, of course, didn't count in this new game. At first Lorry was rather interested in them. They were—a type. But constant association did not mean improvement, and they were not especially inspirational. Lawrence, however, thought of Merton Munn.

He even invited Cynthia Lane out to lunch. He picked her out from the others without knowing why.

They found a tiny, blue and rose tea-room in which Lorry felt horribly out of place. It proved a perfect setting for Cynthia's mist-like, corn-silk hair and dark blue eyes. Cynthia, in baby blue panne velvet, was perilously near putting all the historical beauties of the world to shame.

"Do you read, Cynthia?" Lorry asked her.

"Dear boy—what a question."

"Shakespeare?"

"Throw away that joke book. Poor Bill! What a trashy pen he guided."

"Trashy?"

"Deep stuff. A million miles from nowhere."

"Oh. What do you read, then?"

"Don't indulge. I might acquire brains. Imagine! Me and brains. We'd get along like a hospital and it would cramp my style."

"You infer that you'd rather be—"

"Dumb? Exactly. The style requires it. Park your brains."

"Oh," said Lorry, trying not to look cynical.

* * * * * * *

Lorry didn't know why he adored Cynthia. He called himself a "belated idiot" for allowing himself to indulge in such affection. She was adorable, of course, but her conversation and mental power, compared to Lorrie's, was like a thin, muddied little stream beside the dash and splendor of Niagara Falls. Yet he had noticed that her eyes held determined little lights and that her opinions and ideas at times nearly approached intelligence. Once he had mentioned it to her, only to be told that he'd have to forgive her for having "off moments" once in a while in which she became intelligent, because she just couldn't help it. Lorrie was completely puzzled. These flappers!

But he pondered the question and came to a decision. The next morning Lorrie "parked" his brains.

He came down stairs an hour late to breakfast, played vigorously with the crowd all day, grinned incessantly, babbled on and on in broken sentences without subject, predicate or common sense. He even made one last gallant attempt and whispered "sweet nothings" to the girls.

Cynthia took it all in silently and raged inwardly. "Pep" stared and laughed at intervals.

Lorrie kept it up a week. He felt he couldn't stand it much longer if it didn't help accomplish his purpose. But it did. Cynthia found him alone in the library one evening and detained him.

"Lawrence—"

"Yes," Lorrie grinned at her.

"Lorrie, do you love me?"

"Oh—"

"Do you?"

"Yes."

"I hate you."

"Cynthia!"

"I do—the way you are. Where did you park your brains?"

"With yours."

"No you didn't. I've just claimed mine and I didn't see yours."

"Perhaps—"

"Lawrence—did you—were you trying to teach me a lesson?"

"Yes."

"I knew it. I'm positive, though, that I didn't act so hopelessly insane as you did."

"No, you didn't. Forgive me."

"I won't. But listen. I hated this 'Dulcey the Dumbbell' stuff. Honest, I really know a lot."

"About what?"

"Well, I can cook fudge and sweep some, and wash and iron, maybe, and anyway I'd try—"

Lorrie put up a deprecating hand.

"Enough. Here's your diploma," and he kissed her.

"You learned about flappers from me," Cynthia told him as soon at it was convenient.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

HOLDS RECORD FOR LEGION ACTIVITY

J. Leo Collins, commander of the American Legion in Pennsylvania, is regarded by fellow Legionnaires as one of the outstanding workers for veterans' welfare in that state. His record in the Legion—as an organizer of the first post in the state, post commander, chairman of the Allegheny county council, a deputy organizer in the state, finally to be elected to the most important post in the entire department organization, has won admiration of the entire Pennsylvania membership.

Commander Collins was commissioned as captain and served with the army in France as a member of the Ninety-second division. There he won honors for bravery and was decorated by the French government. On his return from overseas service he began organization work for the Legion and has continued active in the organization since that time.

home post, tendered him a testimonial dinner in East Pittsburgh. At that dinner many prominent Legion men, congressmen, state, county and municipal officers were present. Through arrangements with the Westinghouse Radio corporation, the addresses and entertainment were broadcast by the powerful wireless station KDKA, so that Legion men all over the nation heard the tribute to their comrade.

Board of Appeals to Hear Numerous Cases

Reorganization of the Central Board of Appeals of the Veterans' bureau, increasing membership of that body from seven to seventeen in order to expedite cases presented, was first proposed by the American Legion, officials of that organization declare.

About 12,000 cases have been heard annually by the reviewing board, but the increased membership, it is believed, will permit nearly 50,000 cases of disabled veterans to be presented.

Another change advocated by the Legion and recently put into effect by Director Frank T. Hines, has been the establishment of a finance division in the bureau and separation of the disbursing and accounting sections.

Legion Boosts Good Roads

A special session of the Missouri state legislature to consider plans for extending the road appropriations has been sought by members of the St. Louis county council of the American Legion. In a letter to Governor Hyde, the Legion men declare that they learned the value of good roads while in France, and that as the condition of many roads in that state is deplorable, steps should be taken to both expedite and extend the road building program. Under the proposal made by the Legion men, authorizing of additional funds would provide a complete system by 1928.

Way to Aid Disabled

One man's contribution to service funds maintained by the American Legion in Marshalltown, Ia., practically made it possible to carry on post work for disabled during the year. "Dad" Everist, as the Legion men affectionately call him, owns and operates a string of filling stations in that city, and one day turned over his places for the Legion men to handle, giving them the profits. Gas sold at a low figure on that date, and many autoists took advantage of the opportunity to stock up, and thereby aid the Legion's work.

Simplicity Itself.

"How did you find the mosquitoes up there?"

"Cinch. Didn't even have to look for them."—American Legion Weekly.

LEGION EXPECTS VERY BUSY YEAR

The National Rehabilitation committee of the American Legion anticipates 1924 as a most active year, according to the views of Legion officials and others interested in service work performed by the veterans' organization. The work will be under the guidance of Watson B. Miller, formerly national vice-commander of the organization, who has accepted the chairmanship of the rehabilitation committee, and who has given up his law practice during that time in order to perform this service for the World war veterans.

Anticipated work of the Legion's committee this year resolves itself into approximately six general classifications. While the so-called "Service Division" of the organization at national headquarters has been closed in accordance with the mandates of the fifth national convention, and all claims will be handled through the committee in Washington, there are certain other definite phases of the work, particularly legislative, which face the committee.

Further decentralization of the United States veterans' bureau is one of the principal Legion aims during the year. Director Hines has already announced a similar policy in regard to many of the recommendations of the organization, and further suggestions are expected in this direction. Completion of the hospital building program is another step which will be urged. A bill already introduced in congress at the instance of the Legion asks that an additional $5,000,000 be appropriated to rush these projects to completion. General liberalization of many bureau rulings, especially those affecting admission to the government hospitals will be sought.

One of the points to be urged will be the increase of dependency compensation for widows and children of deceased ex-service men, on which special legislation is expected at an early date.

Extension of hospitalization privileges to all ex-service men, without regard to origin of the diseases or disability, as resulting from or by war, said to be favored by veterans' bureau officials will, however, become the principal objective of the Legion's committee.

Big Rush to Renew Legion Membership

Membership of the American Legion shows a great quickening of interest, Lemuel Bolles, national adjutant of the organization has declared, after reviewing the rapid renewal of membership for 1924. Figures in the hands of the officials of the organization, indicate that renewals are 35 per cent greater than in any previous year, which fact is taken as a sign of a healthy condition.

Mr. Bolles has said that such an increase is due primarily to the opposition to the demands of ex-service men for adjusted compensation, which, he says, has only served to unify the veterans that their request may be heeded. He says that charges to the contrary are unfounded and only inspired by designing persons who seek to discredit the Legion because of its program.

One indication of the increased interest, according to the Legion man, is the unusual sales made by the division which handles official jewelry for the organization. In two weeks prior to Christmas, the sales of this division exceeded by more than three times, those of the previous year. Another sign taken by the national officials as a splendid forecast, is the rapid filling of the "Five Hundred Clubs" of posts which boast of more than 1,000 members. These clubs include only the first five hundred men to pay their dues, and without exception, all memberships were filled before January 1, 1924.

Kept an Eye on "Yanks"

A Communist demonstration in France, made against French World war veterans failed to disturb an American Legion color guard which headed the procession of veterans. A Franco-American patriotic celebration at Choisy-le-Roi, near Paris, was the occasion for a parade, which was headed by the Paris American Legion color guard, bearing the United States emblem. Communists started to stone those in the parade, but confined their efforts to the French section, not caring to risk the grim-faced "Yanks" in their steel helmets, who marched with fixed bayonets at the head of the procession.

Relief for Hero's Family

The widow and children of the most distinguished soldier of Wakefield, Mass., of the World war, are not public charges today, only because of timely assistance brought by Corp. Harry E. Nelson post of the American Legion. The post was named for the husband and father, who was the first Wakefield man to be awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, and who died a year ago from his war wounds. Recently it was found that his family was in need, so the post instituted a campaign of relief which brought immediate response from the townspeople.

"On-to-Paris" Club

The desire to hold the 1928 convention of the American Legion in Paris, France, will not down. A recent example of this is the "On-to-Paris" club formed in Wabash, Ind., by Legionnaires, who are depositing $1 each week until 1928. This money may be withdrawn only in case of sickness or death.

Mrs. Spangler now resides at the Engelbach home with her sister, Mrs. Fannie Trabert Engelbach, in Pittsburgh, and is pastor of the United Brethren church in East Pittsburgh. John Engelbach, August Engelbach, Miss Fannie Engelbach, and their mother, Mrs. Fannie Engelbach, were in the house with Mrs. Spangler. Carbon monoxide gas had affected all and only prompt attention by a physician saved them.

The Communion services of the Reformed church, which were postponed last Sunday owing to the illness of Rev. A. M. Schmidt, will be held next Sunday, January 20th, at the morning and evening services. Rev. H. M. Battenhouse, who filled the pulpit last Sunday, will officiate. Rev. Schmidt had a severe attack of indigestion last Saturday night and has since been confined to his home. He is recovering under skilled care but unable to be about.

Mr. and Mrs. Whiting Griswald, uncle and aunt of Fred Davis and Mrs. Harry Williams, were taken to their home in Baltimore, Md., in a delightful motor trip by Mrs. Williams and her brother. The party left Bellefonte at ten minutes before 12 o'clock last Friday and were in Baltimore at 6:30. Mr. Davis drove the car and said, "The roads were fine and we had no trouble whatever. We made the trip back on Saturday in about the same time. The distance covered was 382 miles. One concrete road out from Harrisburg is so straight that you can look ahead for 19 miles at one place."

Hugh Johnston, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Johnston, who is one of the star basket ball players on the Dickinson College quintet, was honored at a recent election by being unanimously selected as captain of the 1924 cage team. This year's team is proclaimed by the college as the best ever turned out at that school. "Big" Johnston pairs off with his brother Phil, "Eagle Eye" Johnston, on the forward positions. They played with great credit on one of the best basket ball teams ever turned out by the local High School and gained favor in the sporting world immediately after going into basket ball at Dickinson College, after graduating from the local High. They are quick and play a remarkable game. It was through the whirlwind floor work of Hugh Johnston that the Dickinson College five were able to win so many victories last season. This is the fourth year in Dickinson for the local young men. They are members of the class of 1924 and the Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Harold Ward and wife departed this week for Cleveland, O., where Mr. Ward will start as Farm Bureau Agent in Cuyahoga County, of which Cleveland is the county seat. Mr. and Mrs. Ward were visiting here with his mother, Mrs. J. E. Ward, during a short rest period before beginning in his new field of labor. He formerly held a similar position at Morristown, N. J., working under the New Jersey State College. His work in Ohio will be under the Ohio State University. Already Mr. Ward has gone over the field carefully and finds it far larger and of a different type than in New Jersey. There are about 3,000 farms in Cuyahoga County, but they are smaller, averaging about 50 acres apiece, and are farmed intensively, much garden truck being produced and many being engaged in dairying and poultry husbandry. It is a merited promotion to Mr. Ward and folks in the home town will be glad to hear of his success. He is one of the sons of the late Dr. Ward, in his time a well known dentist.

Mrs. Harding, of WilkesBarre, is visiting here with Miss Margaret Stewart.

Lavina Co., of Philadelphia, importers of foreign ores, etc., was a Bellefonte visitor on Wednesday. Analysis of the stone is highly satisfactory, according to Mr. Hassinger, and now it is to be ascertained if the vein is large enough to warrant operation.

HILL'S NEW GARAGE

Structure Will be 38 by 80, Brick and Fireproof.

Ground was broken last week at the property of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hill, on the corner of East Bishop and Wilson streets, for a fine new garage building. The workmen are employes of Edward J. Gehret and of Theodore Haupt, who will have much of the work.

The new building comes naturally as an indication of the expansion of the oil, gasoline and auto accessories business conducted for a year or longer by Russell Hill, who has been very successful. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hill and the parents are aiding him in every way possible to further his success, much of which is due to the satisfactory way in which he has been conducting his business.

The structure will be two stories, fire proof construction and of brick. It will be 37 by 80 feet. The first floor will be used as a garage and the second floor will be an apartment. The garage will be arranged for storage of cars and nicely equipped at the Bishop street front for handling the large accessories, oil and gas business. No decision to handle cars has been made at this time. It is planned to have the place ready for occupancy by April 1st.

Due to the ever increasing popularity of the automobile, Bellefonte like other towns and cities, is rapidly acquiring a large number of garages. The pleasing feature of it is that every party interested seems quite successful.

Beech Creek Homes Quarantined.

Several homes in Beech Creek have been placed under quarantine for measles and mumps. The disease seems prevalent among children. Quite a number of cases of measles have been reported in Lock Haven. Health conditions in Bellefonte have been unusually good this year. Comparatively few homes have been quarantined here.

MOTORISTS WAITING

twenty-five feet it will glare in the eyes of persons approaching you and at 200 feet it will not be on the road at all.

"Of course, no workable scheme can put adequate light ahead of a car without evil effects, and there will continue to be some conditions in which the use of dimmers is courteous, if not necessary, especially in the case of cars meeting at the brow of a hill or on a rolling or rough road. But if you have an approved headlighting device and keep it properly adjusted, most signals for dimming can be disregarded. There are frequent occasions when a driver comes down a road with glaring lamps, snaps them off when meeting another car and, being left in darkness, thinks others are to blame for his inability to see.

"The motor vehicle law requires that enough light be projected in front of the car for the driver to readily observe or discern a substantial object or persons at a distance of 200 feet. This is impossible if the lights are dim or poorly arranged. Persons driving with insufficient illumination are placing themselves in a position where they will be more susceptible to the approaching motorists' bright lights than if they had the roadways properly illuminated."

BASKET BALL NOTES

High School Girls Defeated in Game with Normal.

The Bellefonte High School basket ball team was defeated on Friday evening at the local armory by the strong Houtzdale High School five. The latter team is playing splendid ball and was too speedy for the locals. The score was 37—17.

On Saturday evening the Bellefonte High School five contested for honors with the Lock Haven High quintet. The score was 22—14.

The Bellefonte girls played their first game of the season on Saturday evening with the Lock Haven Normal School team. The latter won this game, the score being 17—15.

The Lock Haven Normal walked away with the Spring Mills girls on Friday evening, winning by a score of 34—18 on the Normal gym floor.

The Bellefonte Academy open their basket ball season on this Thursday evening in the armory here at 8:30 o'clock. The Academy's opponents will be the Bucknell University second team and there is much speculation as to the result. One thing is certain, the Academy and Bucknell players always put up a good game and Coach Snavely has his local team in shape to make things interesting tonight. On Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock sharp, the Academy will contest with the Bloomsburg Normal quintet. This game will also be at the Armory.

The Bellefonte High School boys' team will have their keen rivals, the Lewistown High School, as opponents in the armory here on Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock. This promises to be a game in which the local quintet will give the visitors a real tussle for honors. The Lewistown team is good but our local team expects the victory by putting their best into the game.

Remarkable Record.

The Academy has made a remarkable record this year. "Usually a few students who go home at vacation time do not return again," said Prof. James R. Hughes, in speaking of the record. "This is the experience of all schools. We have a large enrollment and every young man but two, who were disciplined, has returned. Twelve new ones came in and there are continua inquiries from new prospects, keeping the the school at capacity. We have never had all the boys return before and look at this year's achievements as remarkable. It may not occur again in 20 years or more. I can't help but be proud of it—it speaks so well for the school to have every student return and some others to come here from other schools.

Removed Community Tree.

The pretty community Christmas tree at the Diamond in Bellefonte was removed on Saturday afternoon by John Lambert and son Russell. It required most of the afternoon to take it down. The branches were cut away from the trunk, one by one, and then the trunk was cut in two, about three feet from the pavement, and a chain hoist arrangement was used to lift the lower part of the tree from the earth where it had been placed substantially. The trunk and branches were then taken away in Russell Lambert's big truck. The lights and wire used in trimming the tree had been taken from it about two weeks ago.

Its Louis Hill's Orchestra.

Its Louis Hill's orchestra in Bellefonte now, this popular musical organization being much in demand for practically all engagements where an orchestra will add zest and spirit to the affair. Naturally, it was Louis Hill's orchestra that played at the banquet of the Firemen's Relief Association recently.

Dates for P. N. G. Encampment.

Dates for the encampment of the Pennsylvania National Guard for summer training were announced on last Thursday and the local troopers will go to camp at Mt. Gretna on July 19 to be encamped until Aug. 2.

Ditched Car to Avert Collision.

The Ford touring car of Andy Kachik, partner in the electrical firm of Miller and Kachik, of Bellefonte, was damaged recentlly but Mr. Kochik avoided injury. He turned his car into an embankment to avert a collision with a truck which he said was parked so as to block the highway at first and was then driven so that he was misled until too late to realize he could not pass it safely. The truck was owned by F. Brest, of Millheim, who had stopped at a farm to load a bull onto it. It was at the dangerous hill, near Smithtown, that the accident occurred.

Discovered Broken Rail.

Harry Watson, Pennsy watchman at the High street railroad crossing, made a discovery on last Friday morning that likely averted a serious accident at noon. Mr. Watson was looking over the rails just after the Lewisburg passenger went by and noticed a break. He investigated closely and found that the rail was broken in two. It was replaced by a new rail. Had one of the heavy Lehigh trains run onto the rail before the break was discovered it is said the heavy engine would have been derailed.

Auto Damaged by Fire.

The Chevrolet sedan of Darius Cole, of Coleville, was damaged considerably on Sunday evening by fire believed to have started from a short circuit. The car was in the barn of William Sprankle, which Mr. Cole has leased, and an alarm of fire was sent to Bellefonte. The Logan Fire Company responded quickly but their services were not needed as the auto was taken from the barn and the fire extinguished before the firemen arrived.

He Left Us Well Provided For

ALL the long weeks he suffered after the accident his hospital expenses were paid and I got $50 a week, every four weeks, in addition because he had that ÆTNA DISABILITY POLICY.

He'd had this policy a number of years. It cost so little we never missed the amount. When he left us, it was costing no more than when he first took it out, and all those years the insurance was increasing rapidly.

Baby and I have several thousand dollars now because of my husband's foresight. I shudder to think of what a frightful struggle life would be had I put it off until too late. The world looks none too kindly upon widowhood.

ÆTNA-IZE

—TODAY, while you're whole and strong. Your wife, your children, those depending on you, should be provided for. Call, phone, or write.
